When you get sick and can't go to work, or you need to take care of an ill relative, you may need a certificate for your employer. Many businesses require their employees to present a doctor's certificate for sick leave or Carers Sick leave. This is typically once an employee has had two consecutive days off work due to their illness, however, policies can be different depending on the company. Students can also require a sick leave doctor's certificate if they have been sick and missed exams or assignment deadlines.

Our online doctors are on standby for same-day appointments and can get you the certification you need. The process is quick, easy, and convenient. With a simple, your certificate can be in your hand without having to visit a doctor's office. You can choose to have a carer's certificate or a sick leave certificate online, depending on your needs.
